atmosfair site visit at India One Solarthermal Power Station

In October, atmosfair project manager Kerstin Burghaus visited India One, to support the first verification of the project. “It was very interesting to get a first-hand experience of the solarthermal power plant. Our partner WRST has developed the technology with the help of external experts – a remarkable achievement which was also acknowledged by the independent auditor who led the verification site visit.” The auditor was there to verify that the project has been implemented as stated in the Gold Standard registration documents and that emission reductions achieved in the past year and also the sustainable development benefits have been correctly accounted for. The results of the verification will be publicly available in the Gold Standard project registry once the review has been completed.
