

News from the Construction of the Local Stove Factory

Kigali, Rwanda September 2021: The time has come: The roof for our stove factory in Rwanda is finished. This means that the construction work for the new factory building is almost completed.

New Factory Building in Kigali

Over the last few months, we have tested the machines and production line needed for local stove production in our workshop in Berlin-Pankow and adapted them to the conditions in Kigali. The machines are now on their way to Rwanda. We want to produce the first stoves in Kigali before the end of this year. Once production has successfully started, we will significantly increase sales of the stoves to enable even more people in Rwanda to enjoy smoke-free, low-wood cooking.

We start with a production capacity of 40,000 stoves per year which will be gradually increased to 60,000 stoves. By expanding sales to neighbouring countries, we intend to further increase distribution and will then further expand the capacity of the factory.
